SHIP COMPANIES LOSE ACTION FOR WET INJUNCTION

MOTION DISMISSED BY FEDERAL JUDGE IN NEW YORK.

APPEAL EXPECTED

Stay Extended to Give Chance for Immediate Plea Before U. S. Supreme Court.

New York—Federal Judge Hand Monday handed down a decision dismissing the motion of foreign and American ship companies for a permanent injunction restraining federal prohibition agents from putting into effect the bone dry ruling of Attorney General Daugherty. He extended the stay temporarily, however, providing that the steamship companies file an immediate appeal to the U. S. supreme court. Judge Hand decided in favor of the government on all points. The decision was rendered on the specific matter of the application of foreign lines for an injunction protecting from seizure ships carrying liquor under seal on the east bound voyage from the United States. The decision applies to both foreign and American lines, because of the statement made by Judge Hand during the injunction proceedings last week that a defeat of the motion of the foreign lines would naturally bring about defeat of the American lines' motion for an injunction. The temporary execution of the stay granted by Judge Hand applies only to liquor to be used as supplies for members of ships crews on the voyage to Europe. This extension was granted on the furnishing of a bond of $50,000 by the steamship companies to guarantee that the liquor would not be used for any other purpose than the one stipulated. Will Appeal Soon. Everett M. Allen, counsel for the White Star line, announced that his firm and representatives of the 12 other foreign and domestic lines represented in the proceedings will appeal as soon as possible. The original action against the Daugherty ruling was brought by the Cunard and Anchor lines, which were later joined by other companies, including most of the important foreign-American lines in the trans-Atlantic trade. All brought bills in equity mentioning Secretary Nelson, U. S. collector of this port, and federal prohibition agents.

DRY LAWS WILL BE RIGIDLY ENFORCED

Washington.—The liquor statutes, in all their broadened scope outlined by Attorney General Daugherty, are now in effect and will be rigidly enforced. Prohibition Commissioner Haynes declared Monday, when informed of the decision of Judge Hand in New York.

HIGHER IN CITIES

Ratio Lower on Farm Property; Janesville-Beloit Situation Is Equalized.

True values have been established on the important taxation districts of Rock county, following an informal conference called by Assessor of Income F. A. Taylor among members of the county equalization committee. The plan of calling together the tax authorities previous to the fall meeting of the supervisors proved a decided success. It is expected figures now being prepared will be accepted at the November meeting of the county board, the board having had ample time for reconsideration of the true value amounts. There are no radical changes in the tax figures submitted by the local assessors and the "true value" or equalized figures of Assessor Taylor. Mobs Cry "Death to Traitors," in Athens Outbreak Athens.—The Greek revolution was acclaimed at a mass meeting in the Palace De La Constitution, Sunday. Citizens of Athens and members of the revolutionary committee harangued the crowd while airplanes released thousands of bulletins voicing the nation's greeting to the "all saving revolution." Cries of "death to the traitors" arose when Col. Plastiras, a member of the committee, outlining the aims of the revolution, criticised those Greeks who, he charged, while seeking to lay the blame for the disaster in Asia Minor on the army, were themselves responsible by their misdeeds for the nation's misfortune. After the meeting a committee of citizens visited the American legation where, after presenting a copy of the pro-revolutionary resolutions, the chairman expressed the gratitude of the Greek people for practical humanitarianism in helping the destitute refugees. Jefferson Caffery, charge, responded that the people of the United States were glad to be in a position to assist the war sufferers.

ACT IS SURPRISE

Held Indication That Mystery of Double Crime Is Deep As Ever.

Trenton, N. J.—At the request of Supreme Court Justice Parker, the attorney general's department Monday assumed charge of the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder case. Attorney General McCran deputized William A. Mott of Essex county as deputy attorney general in charge. Mr. Mott will begin his duties immediately. The action of Justice Parker was taken at the joint request of Prosecutors Strleker and Beekman, of Middlesex and Somerset counties, respectively. The announcement from the attorney general's office came as a surprise in view of reports that the case was practically closed and that indictments would be asked of the Somerset county grand jury. It is taken here as an indication that the prosecutors have admitted failure and that the mystery is not near solution.

Gloucester, Mass.—Appeals by Secretary of the Navy Denby and others Monday induced the schooner crew to race with the Canadian Bluenose again, following refusal of the seamen to repeat the race which they won Saturday. Secretary Denby's decision to race members of her crew, carrying southwester and slickers, marched in a body through the main streets shouting "We're back." At the wharf where the Ford was docked the paraders were met by Secretary Denby, who was an official member of the Ford's crew in Saturday's race and planned to sail again Monday. Secretary Denby told the men that, in a way, the honor of the country was at stake. The Ford was a crew of men of America, he said, and it might appear that the men were quitting under fire.

Bureau Has Blanks For Feeder Stock

Applications and blanks for the importation of untested feeder cattle can be obtained at the Rock county Farm Bureau office. Under present regulations the shipping of cattle not "F" tested is prohibited unless the importer holds a permit from the Wisconsin Livestock Sanitary board.

Before these permits can be issued, an agreement between the board and the applicant must be forwarded to the department of agriculture, division of livestock sanitation. To aid farmers in this community who feed beef cattle during the winter months, the bureau has obtained a number of the blank agreement forms.

The strict enforcement of the state laws is sought to aid in the campaign to control and eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

All untested feeders are branded with an "F" to identify them. Under the agreement the owner agrees to keep the feeder stock isolated from native Wisconsin cattle and not use the same troughs, feeding bins or yards as used by the home herd, and at the time of shipping the livestock board must be notified.

Introducing- Certified Furniture Styles

It marks a new and distinct era in the making of homes! In the past there has been no authoritative source of information available to the public about furniture styles, prices and values except through the individual furniture store which was, of course, influenced by the merchandise it had to sell. Now it is possible to buy furniture that has been approved and certified as to style, quality and price by an organization of specialists, each an expert in his line. The Certified Furniture Styles Institute of Grand Rapids confines its activities to the approval of home furnishings that have met and passed every test as to authenticity of style; quality of materials and workmanship, as well as to the certification of a fair price at which this merchandise should be offered to the public. Your furniture is bought to last a generation, and here is definite assistance as well as authoritative guidance in selecting home furnishings of lasting character.

Not All Furniture Can Be Certified The Significance of the Certificate

The rigid standards of this organization must be met in every respect. Styles must meet the approval of artists and designers who have made a life-long study of furniture. Materials must pass every test for quality, and the merchandise itself must be manufactured under sanitary conditions, without child labor or any other practice contrary to the best American traditions, by skilled craftsmen who have had many years of experience.

With every piece of furniture which bears our seal of approval, we issue a certificate signed and sealed by the officials of the Certified Furniture Styles Institute. This certificate stipulates the price you should pay for it, certifies the correctness of its style and the quality of the materials used in its construction. 'ROOSTERS INELIGIBLE FOR PARCEL POST
A dispatch published last week that no chickens could be shipped by parcel post, while having little effect at this season, would have more when chicks are hatched. Postmaster J. J. Cunningham states. The ruling is that no chickens can be shipped by parcel post, and that the shipping of chicks, done on a large scale here in the spring and early summer, is not affected. Another new ruling by the department is that all live can be sent parcel post. Formerly it was only queen bees.

TAX EQUALIZATION COMMITTEE SETS COUNTY'S FIGURES

$122,620,422; and for 1922, a raise to $123,679,422.
The figure of $123,679,422 has been tentatively set as the basis of distribution of taxes. The figures submitted by the local assessors amounts to $116,57,022, exceeding the 1921 estimate by more than $200,000.

Janesville's Share.
The assessed valuation of Beloit, as submitted by P. T. Livermore, amounts to $27,441,338, as compared to $23,444,008 in 1921, a voluntary increase of $2,450,330.
The assessed valuation of Janesville as submitted by Frank Smith amounts to $23,621,110 compared to $23,629,746 a year ago.

The assessor of income deemed it fair to equalize the tax situation between the two cities with Beloit at $23,621,110 and Janesville, $23,629,746—the figures accepted by the board at the conference. The ratio of the two cities to the total county tax is 21.21 percent—1921 difference of .001 percent.

Ratio of Taxes.
The difference in the two cities amounts to only $815,630, with Janesville paying the more.
The voluntary increase on the part of Beloit is practically 10 percent of the 1921 figures.
There is an interesting taxation change in comparing the amounts paid by the rural districts with that of the cities and villages. In 1921 the ratio was as follows:
Farm lands . . . $8.28%

Send every energy to finish the high school building as it may be used before the end of 1922. With the completion, the problem of the community center will be solved. The Janesville needs and should have ample hotel facilities to care for the public. That will be especially true of the coming winter. The city needs a new hotel. The city needs a new hospital. The city needs a new police station.
The city needs a new fire station. The city needs a new city hall. The city needs a new city hall. The city needs a new city hall.

THIS IS HEALTH WEEK

This is Health week. Of course we want health all the 52 weeks in the year. But for this one week we are going to emphasize many things that will give better conditions surrounding us that make for good health. It takes a strong active body to make a good citizen. While there are examples of genius in weak and crippled bodies, like Keats, who died a mere youth, or Green, who wrote the History of England from a bed where he lay paralyzed, yet the man and woman of strong body, with features glowing with health and vitality, will have a much better chance in the world than genius in a warped body. Clothing and diet, air and exercise, rest and recreation—these enter into the items of health. The lazy and indolent, the parasites both of poverty and wealth live less years and are more often prey of disease than the man and woman who toll to some purpose and regulate lives with attention to the necessities for blood circulation and the active operation of all the physical machinery. The basic reason for Health week is that attention shall be fixed upon some of these principles which make for better health.

We have had a disastrous lesson in epidemics.
Hundreds of people were killed by the flu, who might have lived. We cannot always be prepared for a now and strange attack of this character, but we can be strong and resistant when the hour comes and the soldiers of the blood may be readily marshaled to combat the germs of life-destroying disease.

That is why we have a Health Week.

If Ford runs for the presidency will there be an other automobile political party?

COLLEGE SCRAPS AND STUDENT DEATH

It is only a few days since a student at the neighboring college of Milton was fatally injured in a college scrap between classes. Fists, feet and the rough and tumble fighting which was common between roughs and roysters in the college boat and pioneer days, has characterized the college entertainment. Other battles in other parts of the country have resulted in maiming boys or in actual deaths. In Los Angeles a score of students were injured and one is dying from a broken neck. The story over the wire says that "fists and clubs, bricks and torches and any other weapon handy were brought into action." College heads smiled approvingly at this display of "manhood" and "virile Americanism."

Of course it may be necessary for a perfect youth to get all this as a means toward higher education and that the weak and less rough and rowdy shall be eliminated by giving them a kick in the back or hitting them with a bottle filled with gasoline, over the head. One can note the smug and happy smile of the faculty when some one hits a fellow student with a brick and achieves a K. O. Higher education seems to demand that a boy pass an examination and qualify in broken arms and legs, a scarred scalp or a crooked spine.
However we are of the opinion that it might be possible to give a boy or girl a college education and permit him or her to graduate without a broken head or a maimed body.

Beloti's football motto seems to be "I ain't a goat to do nothin' for nobody."

WE WILL HAVE NO LAKE NAVY.

A new treaty, or to be more exact, an arrangement under an old treaty, is under way with the government of the Dominion of Canada by which both Canada and the United States will reduce naval armaments on the Great Lakes to revenue cutters. These will be used in enforcing the customs laws and look after fishing violations. Under the treaty signed in 1817, both the Canadian and the United States Governments were permitted to keep in commission on the border lakes, four vessels, two on the upper lakes, one on Lake Ontario, and one on Lake Champlain. These naval "forces" have kept the peace to perfection. They have never trained their guns upon each other, and apparently there was no reason why the existing arrangement should not have continued indefinitely. There was nothing sinister in either of the naval armaments on the Great Lakes. So little has there been for these vessels during the past century, that the two governments have decided to abolish their naval forces in these waters entirely, leaving to the humbler revenue cutter, the duty of maintaining the Great Lakes in their ancestral calm.

Peace with Canada has existed for 105 years since the treaty of 1817 was signed. There was no League of Nations to enforce that peace. It required no cannon, no machine guns and no armed patrols along the borders. Treaties and more treaties have not been necessary. Behind this

New York's Anti-Vice Society

OF FREDERICK A. HASKIN

Washington.—Anthony Comstock may be dead, but as they sang of John Brown, his soul goes marching on. The organization which he founded to fight vice will soon celebrate its 25th anniversary and its latest report indicates it is as busy as ever.
It is not generally known that the New York society for the suppression of vice does not confine its work to the city and state which gave it its name. "The society's report shows it has participated in investigations and prosecutions in several cities in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin, and that it co-operated with a somewhat similar organization in Paris.
In the course of its work the society has been instrumental in procuring the arrest of more than 4,000 persons of whom more than 3,500 were convicted or pleaded guilty. Sentences aggregating 646 years imprisonment have been imposed upon the guilty and fines assessed against them amounting to more than a quarter of a million dollars.

In connection with these cases there have been confiscated 127,904 pounds of book and sheet stock, 3,331,633 obscene pictures and postcards, 1,516 photo negatives and films, 40,434 plates for printing books, 425,459 articles of immoral use and 7,139,957 circulars, catalogues, etc. Last year were also taken on search warrant 4, 569 magazines and as evidence 2 reels of obscene motion picture films.

In addition to all this the officers of the society also point with pride to the part it has taken in the Better Public Shows Movement in New York City and in bringing about the enactment of the law establishing the New York State Motion Picture Commission. Films now shown in the state may be licensed by the commission and a license may be refused on the ground of indecency, tendency to incite to crime and for other causes.

J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, was associated with Anthony Comstock as one of the founders of the society, and other prominent men included in the list of incorporators were William T. Dodge, Jr., Morris K. Jessup and Robert B. McBurney.
The society was legalized by an act of the legislature of the State of New York passed May 15, 1875, and its object, as stated in the law, is the enforcement of the laws for the suppression of the trade in and circulation of obscene literature and illustrations, advertisements, and articles of indecency and immoral use, as it is or may be for-bidden by the laws of the State of New York or of the United States.

The law further provided that the police force of the city of New York, as well as of other places where police organizations exist, shall, as occasion may require, aid this corporation, its members or agents, in the enforcement of all laws which now exist or which may hereafter be enacted for the suppression of the acts and offenses specified in section 3 of the Act.

Thus it is apparent that the society is an extraordinary organization with altogether unusual functions and powers. Law enforcement is generally regarded as something to be entrusted solely to public officials duly created and commissioned by the body that enacts the laws. Such officials are paid by the government, federal, state or municipal, as the case may be, their responsibility is fixed and their authority carefully defined.

Yet here was a group of private individuals, almost all of whom were officers, directors, or life members of the Y. M. C. A. of New York, who were empowered to enforce certain laws and the police—the usual law-enforcing officials—were directed to assist them. None of them and none of their agents was required to furnish bond or otherwise establish his responsibility and no consideration was given to the officers and agents of the society was reserved to the state.

The original act even went so far as to provide that "one-half of the fines collected through the instrumentality of this society or its agent, for the violation of the laws in this act specified, shall go over to its benefit." This clause was speedily repealed and provision was made for the division of the fines between the Female Guardian Society and the Prison Association of New York, but the fact that it was in the law as it was first passed is illustrative of the confidence imposed by the legislature in the society at the time it was formed.

However, it was many years before the general public accorded it similar recognition. It was something entirely new to the courts, prosecuting attorneys, the police, and the newspapers and it was an object of suspicion and sometimes of active animosity, as it now admits in its publications. Anthony Comstock, who was the executive secretary and director of its activities from the date of its founding until his death in 1915, was subjected to all manner of criticism. He was hampered and caricatured in the press and burlesqued on the stage, and most people had the idea that he was either a joke or an officious old busybody who sought constantly to "stick his nose in other people's business."

Those who violated the laws which his society was commissioned to enforce learned in time that Saint Anthony, as he was dubbed, was not a joke.
Whether he undertook to suppress books and plays that were not objectionable save to prud-es, and whether he sought to establish standards of morality that were not acceptable to a great majority of the people, may be debatable questions.
However, it is not of record that anything he or his society has ever done has harmed any one save those who sought profit in transactions against which the law might be invoked. Anthony Comstock may be regarded as a "gloom" and in some quarters it may be argued that he took a great deal of the sunshine out of life, but the data compiled by the society, the figures of which have been quoted, indicate that there must have been some need for the work which he undertook to do.

John S. Sumner, who now carries on the work started by Comstock, describes the society as a law-enforcing agency acting as proxy for the ordinary citizen in seeing that specific laws, aside from the usual duties of the police, are respected and enforced.

peace there has been a desire for peace. Without this, treaties are mere scraps of paper and the protests of eternal friendship and fraternal affinity are as sounding brass and a tinkling symbol. The trouble in Europe is that the nations are crude and raw in the selfish demand for rights and privileges. Greed dominates and peace is only satisfactory when force is used—satisfactory because of fear. We respectfully present the example of Canada and the United States to the world as a way out of all war.

So far the Ku Klux Klan in Wisconsin seems to be only a sheeted ghost.

The Chicago Tribune says we will break Italian laws with our prohibition laws. That is too bad. Since when did we make laws in America to accord with the laws of some other nation? There are probably several thousand laws on the American statute books which would conflict with laws of almost any other nation.

Weather Prophet Mead may be mistaken. He offers only cold comfort at best for the winter.

Janesville hit the zero hour at Monroe but there is ample opportunity to change the score before Thanksgiving.

It has almost reached time for the New Brunswick murder to be filmed.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

FOOTBALL.

I'd rather fumble it would come a healthy boy who's ten years old Forecasts the things he'll want to do without his second being told to come and found And so last night when I got home and found his mother strangely still,
I guessed somehow that mother love had battled with a youngster's will.
"You'll have to settle it," said she; there's nothing more that I can say.
The game of football's calling him and he insists he wants to play."

We've talked it over many a time; we've hoped it wouldn't cross the name And I suppose there's not a boy whose parents do not feel the same.
They dread, as we, the rugged sports; they wonder, too, just what they'll say.
When son of theirs comes home, as ours, and tells us of the things he's done to play.
And now the question's up to me, a guest, I think I can't evade.
But football is a manly game and I am glad he's not afraid.

He wants to play, he says to me; he knows the game is rough and grim.
But worse than hurt and broken bones is what his friends will think of him:
"They'll call me yellow," he explained, "if I stand out of all things here.
There's nothing so hard to bear as the heartless jibe or jeer."
And though I cannot spare him pain or hurt when tackles knock him flat, Being his father, I've said "yes," because I cannot spare him that.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

LUDDY KIP

The famous Rudyard Kipling
When a literary stippling
Did not have a ready market for his books,
Did kind-hearted Uncle Sam Bought his tales of sheik and camel
And of interesting oriental nooks.

And we read the "Tommy" stories
And the poems of his glories
And we made the famous Mr. Kipling rich
So of course, he has to hate us.
And insult us and berate us.
'Tis the nature of a human-kind and such.

Though you may say us
And you may say us
While you have us on the hip
You're no better man than we are, Roddy Kip.

ANOTHER IMPRESSION OF AMERICA.

In the London "Illustrated News," under a picture of the Woolworth building, we find the following:
"This shows the tallest building yet to be erected in New York, with surrounding dwelling houses, offices and flats. . . . It is known as the Woolworth, from the name of its originator, the proprietor of a mammoth fancy goods emporium."

Profiteering has more enemies in public and more friends in private than any other disease.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN.

Oh, what has become of the old-fashioned fapper.
The flippant young person who wore 'em so short.
The cigarette-smoking, flash carrying scrapper
Who met all rebukes with a slangy retort?

A peril she was to the peace of the nation.
The craphangers couldn't abuse her enough.
She upset the morals of civilization.
This lady who was so exceedingly tough.

She led the whole country right straight to destruction
And young men were wrecked by her frivolous ways.
Her manners and aims were beyond all deduc-tion.
Her boldness left even her friends in a daze.

Alas, the poor workaholic, abused and berated,
Has fled to perdition, so bitter her cup—
But, maybe, at that, she has not emigrated.
Perhaps the long skirts have just covered her up.

Some of the ministerial brothers seem to be treading the well-known primrose path to a pulp these days and there is hardly room for anybody else.

Who's Who Today

DR. SAMUEL WESLEY STRATTON.
After twenty-one years in the service of the United States Government, as director of the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., Dr.
Samuel Wesley Stratton will leave Uncle Sam's employ to become president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He recently was elected to the post Jan. 1 by the board of trustees of the institution. The post has been vacant since the death of its former president in 1921.
Stratton was born in Litchfield, Mass., in 1861, and has a long list of university degrees, both earned and honorary.

While with the government Dr. Stratton built up the Bureau of Standards from a small office, dealing with weights and measures and employing only four men, to a department which occupies a dozen buildings and now employs more than 500 men.

As head of the Massachusetts Institute Dr.
Stratton will draw a salary three times greater than that which the government paid him.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Oct. 23, 1882.—The Boston Operatic Minstrels will play at the Opera house tonight.—General Briggs came to this city yesterday and gave a two-hour talk at Lippitt's hall. He told of his approval of free trade.—Mrs. Fiken, Minnesota, gave an address on temperance at the Court street church last night.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Oct. 23, 1902.—Sen. R. M. La Follette will speak at the Myers theater tonight, on the tariff question.—Three factories here are shut down—riage works for inventory. The Allison haxing break in the power line.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

cordial welcome at the Myers theater last night, when the place was packed to greet him.—Miss Nellie May Russell and Alexander Galbraith were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on Lyon street.—A building boom is sure to come, as houses are badly needed here now.

TEN YEARS AGO

DEATH OF LIFE.

shall die; but if you die through the Spirit, you shall live. The deeds of the body, you

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

WORKING IT OFF

Such a light does break up many an oppressive attack of nervous or other which would otherwise give the subject several days of discomfort if not disability.

Any form of vigorous work or play or exercise indoors or outdoors, sufficient to bring about the necessary increase of metabolism or oxidation will turn the trick.

No particular management or precaution is necessary if after such sweating, it is immaterial whether you bathe, or whether you go out soon afterward, or whether you wear more or less clothing than usual. But sweat and wear comfort about the subject and don't worry.

The time when such a light is worth while is at the very onset. When cornea or otitis has become established, it is difficult to get rid of it six to ten hours, it is tedious and injurious to attempt to work it off.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kindly give me a recipe for brain muffins for constipation.—L. E.
Answer.—On a egg well beaten, a pinch of salt, but not a whole egg, melted, one cupful each of sweet milk, white flour and wheat bran, one teaspoonful baking powder. Beat in from time. Warranted not to keep if there's any more in the house.

Would you advise a blood test or examination of any kind for a child you were thinking of adopting? Is a child's home, if the child's parents are unknown?—Mrs. H. L.

Answer.—It would be well to ask your physician to examine the child, and if the physician is not satisfied as to the child's health he may have any blood tests made.

The Black Menace

A CRAIG KENNEDY STORY

By ARTHUR B. REEVES.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Craig Kennedy, finding on the death of a respected uncle that she was a victim of a million dollars had been dissipated, discovers that she has been a victim of the Black Menace. She appears to be a blackmailer, she appears to be a society detective, and later to Craig Kennedy, the great detective, who is married to Jack Speed, a newspaper reporter, whose father is wealthy, but has determined the son shall earn a living. Kennedy also has a warning from his father, a wealthy banker, not to attempt to aid Claire. Driving hastily to the family home, Kennedy finds that the rich man is dead and investigates the cause. Finally, Kennedy agrees on a plan of action.

An effort to identify Claire Kennedy is made, but owing to the rapid work of Jack Speed, it is frustrated. One of the kidnappers, even so, is followed in the meantime Kennedy finds evidence that Claire has died from a mysterious green powder. He is then introduced to the Crystal Palace, where he meets a woman who is believed to be Claire. A beautiful and mysterious Russian enters the story.

Accordingly we drove to the county court house and succeeded in leaving our charge well provided for in the county jail. Back to the city we went, both Speed and Kennedy chiding Claire for her daring, though Speed was secretly very proud of her.

We left Claire at her apartment and Speed drove her car around to the garage while we took his. It was late and we lost no time in turning in.

It was early in the morning that there was a sudden call for Kennedy on the telephone, and as he answered it I gathered that it was not favorable.

"What's the matter?" I asked as he came from the receiver.

"Matter enough," he responded. "Werner committed suicide in jail after we left him last night."

It was an astounding piece of news and I was at first incredulous. Kennedy, I had evidently counted on getting something from Werner. Now his lips were sealed.

We dressed hurriedly, and after a hasty breakfast were on our way by train to the little county seat where we had left our prisoner the night before.

The warden of the jail was as much at sea about the affair as we were. There could be no question that the prisoner had been searched properly the night before. Nor had there been a chance for anyone to have obtained access to him. Kennedy examined the body as it lay in the morgue at the jail. "There was no doubt that the man had been poisoned, and a closer examination might have shown what the poison was, although it was unlikely to do any good in this case."

Kennedy was examining the man's clothes, when we heard him utter a slight exclamation. In the inside lining of Werner's coat was a little slip of paper. Kennedy felt inside it and drew out one remaining little white pellet. He broke off just a fragment and tried it on his tongue, making a wry face as he did so.

"Evidently strychnine," he remarked. "Someone must have provided him with it against just such a contingency."

The death of Werner raised many questions in my mind. Why had he made away with himself? What was the hold the Black Menace had on him? I could not reflect upon the power of the black-magic and his gang.

The day passed without anything of importance happening. Evidently the Black Menace was content to rest while we made the moves, for the present.

Suspicious of Breshkaya, Kennedy had instituted a searching inquiry into her life and career, but with little result. It was known that she had come to America at the time of the Russian revolution, but why, unless it were for American dollars, no one could say. Even since she had been here "little" was definitely known.

A certain rather sporty class of society had taken her up, and whenever she found her popularity waning she had to appear in some Broadway production or in some exotic scene play to win back the notice she was losing. Just now, we found, she had taken it into her pretty head to accept an engagement, to do a number at the revue at the Crystal Palace.

Accordingly, that evening, Kennedy determined to visit the Crystal Palace again, in the hope of meeting her or, at least, discovering something.

We postponed our visit until quite late in the evening, knowing that it would be no use to go early, and when we arrived, the life of the famous cabaret was in full swing.

We had not long to wait, as Breshkaya was on an exhibition dance and with her was her dancing partner, whom we learned to be Brian Thorne, a former chorus man in several popular shows.

I watched them with interest, and particularly Thorne. For it really seemed as though Breshkaya was more than ordinarily fired by his dancing with her. In fact, she threw herself into the dance with an abandon that was quite remarkable.

After her dance was over she joined a gay party of young men and girls at a table in a corner and it was then that I noticed that Thorne, on his part, was very jealous of her. The more I watched Thorne the more interesting and mysterious the chorus man seemed.

Kennedy maneuvered so that we were finally introduced to Breshkaya and the party at the table. I watched at first to make sure that she did not recollect the night when we had stood in the doorway of her private dining room, questioning her about the disappearance of Claire. At any rate she did not betray it.

There was no doubt that Breshkaya was a "live one" and Kennedy was not backward, for he had a purpose in mind as I soon saw. Almost before I knew it she had invited us to join her party in a ride that night out on Lone Island to a very quiet and select place, where there were a "social" cause, a cold bottle and some entertaining guests—the infection betraying that some Kennedy accepted and, of course, I followed suit, for I saw that he was determined to investigate the disappearance of Claire. Thorne, who was at the table, seemed to be a bit ill at ease, and we finally discovered why it was. His ladies would be present.

The trip was uneventful, except for his gayety and the frequent stops at roadhouses, but at last, at a very late hour, our car pulled up at the door of the House of Mystery, as we had come to call it.

The butler whom we had noted the previous night admitted us without question and it was evident that Breshkaya was a frequent and welcome visitor.

As we entered, I saw at a glance that it was a perfectly wonderful place, both in its planning as well as its fittings. Down the center ran a wide hall, flanked by richly furnished rooms on either side. Through the heavy portieres which closed off the rooms one caught glimpses of exquisitely furnished interiors and many in the more sombre evening clothes.

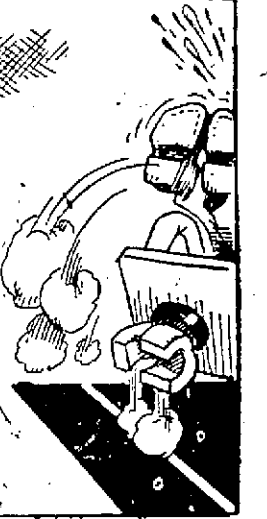

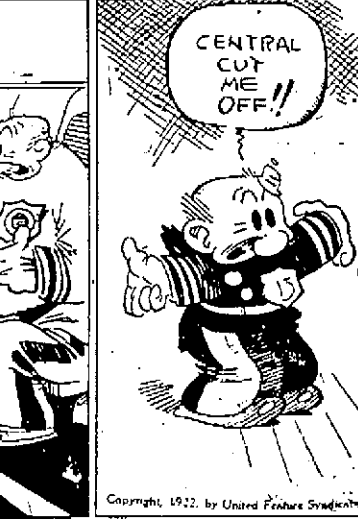

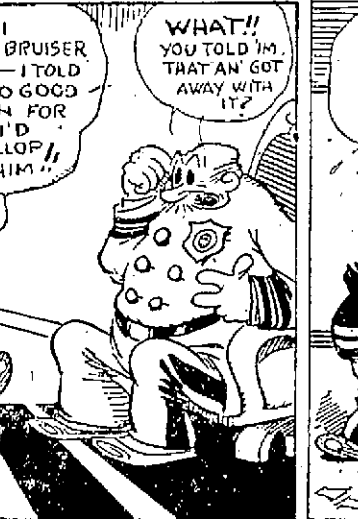

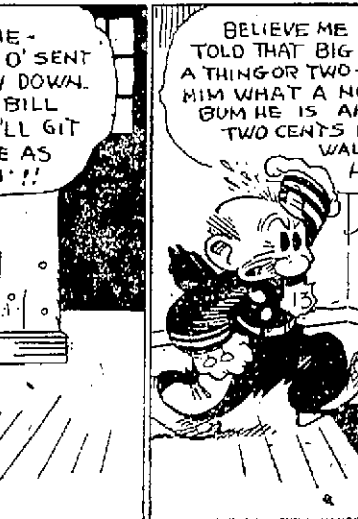

Breshkaya lost no time in seeking out the hostess who presided over this palace of chance.

We were introduced to Madame Rene, a finely poised woman, past middle age, but remarkably vivacious and still handsome. As she moved about, I could not wonder how she contrived, in spite of high living, to mould her rather stout figure along the slim lines of the evening styles. However, she did contrive it, and made a striking figure into the bargain.

There was also Monsieur Jacques. He was a Frenchman, of rather handsome, with dark eyes, a small, dark, close-curling mustache and a general foreign appearance, as indeed had Madame Rene.

RURAL COMMUNITY CLUBS

The Indian Ford Community club will meet every two weeks on Wednesday evenings.

The next regular meeting of the club is scheduled for the evening of Nov. 1. Mrs. Seth Dene has been re-elected president, and four hostesses will be appointed for each meeting. The hostesses for the next meeting are Mrs. M. E. Herbert, Mrs. M. E. Herbert, Mrs. M. E. Herbert, Mrs. M. E. Herbert, Mrs. M. E. Herbert.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT

In her address at the recent Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, Miss Julia Lachon stated that the ration of literate children of foreign born parents is 3 to 1 of children whose parents are native Americans. Of course this is figured on a percentage basis but it doesn't speak very well for the natives.

One of the speakers at the state convention of women's clubs held in Wausau reminded us that Wisconsin has a population of 50,000 Chinese persons, 10,000 of whom are native born. This speaker urged that it should be the aim of every club woman to teach at least one person to read and write.

BEGIN WITH 10-YEAR-OLDS

Mrs. H. J. Frame, one of the speakers who brought glimpses of the biennial to the state federation of clubs convention, said: "The youth of this nation is by nature decent. All they need is leadership and a chance to use their energy constructively. In working with the young we must begin with the 10-year-olds if we would accomplish anything."

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

PRACTICAL AND PRETTY SMOCKS

When I decided to write about smocks and skirts as a simple practical way of dressing I was thinking principally of the ex-pat mother. One of the worst traits of the young mother, particularly if it is the first baby, is to see the disappearance of the slender lines of her figure. She begins then to sympathize with the woman who is growing stout through overeating. In fact, mothers of these days are easy to understand. These smocks are easy to launder and hold their freshness for several days. Such a costume takes half a minute to slip into of a morning and keeps the housewife looking neat while she works. At the same time it gives her a chance to work without corsets, which is the most beneficial way.

The smock is an ideal costume for the expectant mother since it entirely conceals the figure for five or six months and for the remaining short period minimizes any unusual appearance. Russian or peasant style smocks cut on perfectly straight lines and are easy to make and becoming to wear. The other most practical style has the raglan sleeve which corsets because it was first made in countries where corsets were never heard of. I would advise every housewife to wear a straight dark skirt with a smock of light color and classic through the waistband, and over it a simply made smock. This could be of natural or colored linen, gingham or chambray with a touch of coarse bright embroidery. These smocks are easy to launder and hold their freshness for several days. Such a costume takes half a minute to slip into of a morning and keeps the housewife looking neat while she works. At the same time it gives her a chance to work without corsets, which is the most beneficial way.

The chairman of the prison visiting board smiled benignly. "Now," he said, rubbing his hands together, "if there is any prisoner who has a complaint to make, or a question to ask, we will be glad to hear him."

"If you please, gentle," he said, "I want to ask a question about you people coming here." "Just questions," I want to ask. "How do you feel about prisoners a part of our sentence, or do we get that punishment extra?"

MILK VS. COFFEE
In a survey made in one Wisconsin county by the university extension department it was found that 58 per cent of the children drank coffee for breakfast. School nurses said that very often the child who is underweight is a coffee drinker, even in rural communities where milk is plentiful. A striking example of this was witnessed last week by a community officer recently when visiting a rural school with the county nurse. A little boy of 7 years was light pounds below normal weight for his age and height, and he certainly looked trail-weary. When Miss Lachon in the course of her general talk to the school asked how many children drank milk for breakfast, this little fellow did not raise his hand, but when she asked who had coffee for breakfast his hand was the first to go up. The little fellow appeared clean and well cared for otherwise, and she wondered if his mother was not faring in her duty more for want of thought than want of heart."

TODAY'S RECIPES
Braised Whitefish—Cut the whitefish into one-inch slices, and wipe as dry as possible. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush the flesh side well with olive oil or butter. Put in a well greased broiler, placing the thickest parts of the fish toward the middle or back of the broiler. Hold over a hot fire until the flesh side is crisp. Turn from the broiler, spread nicely browned, then cook the skin side just long enough to make the skin loosen one side first then the other and lift carefully with a cake turner. Place on a platter spread with butter and stand in the oven for a few minutes. Garnish with lemon and parsley.

Bohemian Salad—Cover the bottom of the salad bowl with crisp lettuce leaves. Arrange over the top alternate slices of hard-boiled eggs and boiled beets. Sprinkle with finely chopped onion and cover with French dressing.

Pineapple Sherbet—There is no form in which lemons are more palatable or healthful than in the form of sherbet. This is made of fruit juice, sugar and water. Boil one and one-half cups water with one cup of sugar for five minutes. Add one cup of pineapple juice with a little shredded pineapple mixed in it. Freeze. This makes a very small amount, just enough for two.

Almond Sticks—Grind two cups of almonds and reserve one-quarter cup each of sugar and nuts and an egg for decorating. Cream one cup of butter, add three-quarters cup of sugar, then two whole eggs, almonds and two cups of flour. Roll thin and cut in strips. Brush with yolk, sprinkle with nuts and sugar, and bake in medium oven.

Fonate Chow—Wash a peak of unpeeled sliced tomatoes and six sliced onions together until so soft they can be rubbed through a colander. After putting the vegetables through a colander rub them through a sieve and put into a kettle with a tablespoonful each of powdered onion, pepper, salt, sugar and cloves and half a teaspoon-of butter. Simmer for two hours. Serve with bread and butter.

THE NIGHT VISITOR

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

The ground squirrel uses about a billion times more sense in digging his burrow than the average human does in conducting his married life.

It isn't because the ground squirrel has more brains than the human. Humans have enough brains, but we have been sedulously educated in the belief that marriage is an affair of the emotions rather than of the intellect. In fact we're apt to think that an instance of a businesslike platform for marriage is rather cold blooded, almost a profanation of a sacred pact.

Take this business of quarreling, for instance. What quarrel is any quarrel? We go over "their first little quarrel." As a matter of fact, it would be just as sensible to go over their first little murder. There's nothing beautiful about a quarrel within or without marriage. It's a corroding obstruction and it ALWAYS leaves a scar. If we thought of marriage intelligently we wouldn't tolerate the quarrel tradition for a second.

Why in the world should married folks allow themselves to quarrel, no matter what the provocation?
